1.0 PREVENTING ERRONEOUS FERS RETIREMENTS

Because of the various aspects of the Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS), agencies must ensure that they provide the most accurate information available to employees. For the retirement counselor, a clear picture of retirement eligibility may not be readily apparent. Because of the various rules, many questions may arise; such as, how do I know if they have taken a refund? If the employee tells me that they will make the deposit to the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) for their nondeduction civilian service, and yet they do not, what is the agency's position? Do we have to reemploy the individual due to an erroneous retirement if the deposit is not made?

We have decisions under the Merit Systems Protection Board, the Comptroller General, and the Courts that tell us that misinformation given to an employee may later result in a finding that the employee's retirement was an error. In addition, the agency is responsible for reinstating the employee and paying back pay, (See Comp. Gen. Decision B-223118, January 2, 1987, and Scharf v. Department of the Air Force, 710.F.2d 1572). Erroneous separations may be caused by an agency's failure to properly determine an employee's eligibility to retire, eligibility for special formula benefits, and eligibility to continue health or life insurance into retirement. The employee's Official Personnel Folder (OPF) must be reviewed when making these critical determinations. This guide will address erroneous FERS retirements due to the employee not meeting the age and service, and other general eligibility requirements.

For CSRS employees, determining creditable service, in most cases, should not be difficult. If there is documentation in the OPF of CSRS Federal service, then that Federal service is potentially creditable for retirement.

For FERS employees, even though the FERS service is documented in the OPF, you must check for refunded service (if redeposit is not paid, refunded service creditable for eligibility only) and/or non-deduction service on or after January 1, 1989 (not creditable). FERS employees could receive credit for certain government service performed abroad under the criteria of BAL 06-102. When making your determinations and prior to final communication to a FERS employee, if there is a break in service, you should fax a request to OPM, Boyers, PA, to see if there was a refund. A copy of the inquiry form Job Aid #4 is attached to this guide on page 5. The form may be faxed to (724) 794-4668, or you may write to the following address:

U.S. Office of Personnel Management
Retirement Operations Center
P. O. Box 45
Boyers, PA 16017

Once you receive the verification from OPM that the employee has or has not received a refund of retirement contributions, you should file this verification in the employee's OPF as permanent documentation (right side of the OPF).

OPM will not automatically refund a former employee's retirement contributions. The individual must have submitted an application in order to receive a refund. If the individual submitted a refund request, OPM will have that signed application on file.

If the employee has military service after 1956 and the employee has not paid a military deposit, OPM Form 1515, Military Service Deposit Election, is required and must accompany the retirement package.

The attached checklist for FERS retirements should be completed to accompany the retirement package. The document will serve as proof that the employing office has reviewed the record and counseled the employee properly. We encourage the employing office to obtain the employee's signature on the checklist to verify they were aware of their retirement requirements. A copy should be given to the employee for their records.

If steps are not taken to verify creditable service, you will risk providing inaccurate advice/information to your employees. Should you process an erroneous retirement, you will receive a letter from OPM stating the reasons the employee is ineligible. In that case, you and your agency will be faced with reinstating the employee with back pay. However, if you have taken the appropriate actions, you will be confident about the creditability of the service. In addition, if the employee was counseled on making required deposits for civilian or military service, the employee has none of the reinstatement rights discussed in Comp. Gen. Decision B-223118.

You may use the enclosed checklist (Job Aid #1) to assist you in developing your retirement case and making your determination on the eligibility for retirement.
