

Mr. Kurt Rumsfeld

Federal Labor Relations Authority

Chief Counsel

Biography:

Kurt Rumsfeld currently serves as a Chief Counsel for the Federal Labor Relations Authority (FLRA). Before holding this position, which included serving as Chief Counsel to Chairman Ernie DuBester, Mr. Rumsfeld served as the Assistant General Counsel for Operations and Legal Policy for the FLRA's Office of General Counsel. Mr. Rumsfeld joined the FLRA in 2013 after practicing labor and employment law with a private law firm for over 17 years, and he began his career in labor law as an attorney-advisor with the U.S. Department of Labor. Mr. Rumsfeld received his B.A. from Williams College, and his law degree from Northeastern University School of Law. He also has an LL.M. degree in Labor and Employment Law from Georgetown University Law Center.

